MAKE EVERY MOMENT COUNT!

There is a wonderful book called MAKE YOUR LIFE A MASTERPIECE by Peter Legg. Here is an excerpt from that book.

According to the human resources experts at Robert Half International, the average employee works only 50% of the time they are at work. The other 50% of that time is largely wasted on the idle chit-chat with co-workers, late arrivals, extended coffee breaks and lunches, etc., etc., etc.

Some advice from Legg that was passed on to him from his father:

1. Do the tough things first;
2. Take control of both your career and your future;
3. Resolve to work during the time at work;
4. Keep on track;
5. Don't keep waiting for inspiration ... just jump in;
6. Always work towards your goals.

His final advice? If you want to know how effective what you are doing is, break it down into every action and ask yourself this question: "Will what I am doing right now take me toward my goals or away from them?".
